Shalini Kuperati

Dr. Shalini Kurapati is the data steward of the faculty of Technology, Policy and Management at TU Delft (Delft University of Technology). She has an advisory role on the content as well as the policy aspects of research data management practises at the faculty level to bring a cultural change among the relevant stakeholders towards open science. She has been a researcher for more than 7 years specialising in quantitative and qualitative data analysis before taking up the data stewardship role. Her topics of interest and expertise are not limited to research integrity, FAIR principles for both data and software, data protection and privacy. In addition to her adjunct data steward role, she is also a co-founder of a research start-up and consultancy focussing on Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning.
